Alderson Broaddus University invites applicants for 9-month, tenure track faculty positions in nursing (specifically, adult medical-surgical and maternal-child areas of nursing practice). Renowned for providing quality nursing education, the University seeks to continue a tradition of excellence in securing candidates who can fulfill University and School of Nursing faculty expectations in accordance with the applicable laws governing the practice of professional nursing in the state of WV. The faculty works closely with students in the classroom, clinical (1:8 faculty-to-student ratio), academic advising, student organization, professional activities and in achieving student learning outcomes. The faculty-to-student relationship is characterized by attention to individual learning needs in a caring, collegial environment. The School of Nursing maintains accreditation with the Accreditation Commission for Education in Nursing (ACEN) and the West Virginia Board of Examiners for Registered Professional Nurses. The curriculum emphasizes contemporary principles preparing the graduate for 21st century nursing practice.

Candidates for the full-time, 9-month, tenure track positions must have an earned doctorate (preferred); however, candidates with Masters of Science in Nursing from an accredited college or university which includes course work in nursing, education, or administration will also be accepted. The successful candidates will have a minimum of five years’ experience in an academic setting or equivalent administrative experience and evidence of current experience in nursing practice sufficient to demonstrate professional competence in the areas of adult health (specifically, medical-surgical and maternal-child nursing); and, possess or be eligible for licensure in WV.

The ideal candidate will demonstrate the following:

- An understanding of and strong commitment to the mission of the University
- Excellent communication and interpersonal skills
- Successful experience in nursing education as a faculty in classroom teaching or clinical environments
- An ability to advocate effectively for the nursing profession, nursing education and the University at the local, state, regional and national levels
- A passion for facilitating student learning and developing professional deportment in students

Interested applicants should submit their credentials (curriculum vitae and/or professional résumé) with cover letter and reference list in one pdf to:
