

Alderson Broaddus University
Tenure Track, 9-month Faculty, Psychology

Job responsibilities: The primary responsibility of the faculty member in Psychology is to teach undergraduate classes. Candidates will typically teach classes in General Psychology, History and Systems of Psychology, Research Methods, Physiological Psychology, Counseling Theory and other courses as assigned. A typical teaching load consists of 4 three-hour classes/semester. Job duties also include academic advising of students, active participation in college committees, working as a team member in the academic department or division the major resides in, working collaboratively with other faculty and the college administration, active involvement in recruiting activities for new students, and participation in and contribution to the general college community.

Qualifications: Doctorate in the discipline preferred.

Compensation: commensurate with credential and experience.

Supervision of this position is provided by the college dean and the provost/executive vice-president for academic affairs.

This is a 9 month position beginning August 15th with major duties ending May 15th. Recruiting activities and college committees may require a limited amount of time through the summer. Opportunities exist to develop and teach summer courses.

Submit CV and/or resume, teaching philosophy and references to:

HR@ab.edu

NOTE: Electronic submission in one pdf preferred.

Alderson Broaddus University is a health-related and professional educational institution firmly rooted in the liberal arts. Alderson Broaddus University is located in Philippi, WV, and is affiliated with the American Baptist Churches, USA, and the Council for Christian Colleges and Universities. Alderson Broaddus University is an Equal Opportunity Employer and encourages applications from minority candidates.